

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An automated data capture system including mobile terminals brought by inspectors to an inspection vicinity of an end-item. The inspectors inspect components of the end-item and enter resulting inspection data into the terminals. The entered inspection data is electronically transferred to a database system which correlates and maintains the inspection data for the end-item.